Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Thursday 17 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Heavy rain for southeast England on Friday. Mostly dry elsewhere.

This Evening and Tonight:
Dry for many with any late evening showers over the southeast dying out. Some rain developing over central England. Good clear spells in the northwest where chilly. Thicker cloud and perhaps further rain arriving into the far southeast later.

Friday:
Heavy rain soon arriving into the east and southeast England. Cool under this with some thunder likely at times. This clearing northwards overnight into Saturday. Mostly fine and dry elsewhere.

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Fine and dry across Scotland and Northern Ireland. Cloudier and breezy for much of England and Wales with spells of heavy rain or showers for eastern, southern and central England.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.